Lawrence Livermore Laboratory

Official says radioactive leak no threat

LIVERMORE — Lawrence Livermore Laboratory Friday rebuffed allegations by Project Survival that a 1967 plutonium leak at the lab exposes valley residents to harmful risks.

Project Survival had issued a speakers' paper, quoting a LLL report to the International Atomic Energy Agency in San Francisco last November.

The paper said sludge studied from the Livermore City Sewage Treatment Plant "was accidently contaminated with plutonium from the lab."

It said the sludge "is widely used by local citizens for fertilizer." And claimed "a farmer working the soil on a regular basis might inhale significant and potentially dangerous plutonium from the dusty air."

But David S. Meyers of LLL's Hazards Control Department who wrote the report said Project Survival misrepresented the report's conclusions.

"We did not find the plutonium leak to be a significant problem to anyone," said Meyers.

Plutonium, a deadly radioactive material, is used by the lab in its weapons program. Metallurgical and chemcial experiments are performed on the substance as well.

In the 1967 accident, one-half of one gram of plutonium was released during a three-week period, from May 25 to June 15.

The plutonium was carried in lab effluent to the Livermore Sewage Treatment Plant, and found its way into the city's sewage sludge.

The city uses sludge to fertilize street medians and parks. In the past, the sludge also has been available to citizens for use in their yards.

Lab spokesman Jeffrey Garberson explained that LLL called in the then Atomic Energy Commission, the State Department of Public Health, and the City of Livermore once the leak had been identified. "The agencies looked carefully into the potential hazards of the leak," Garberson said, "and concluded there would be no hazard to the public."

The plutonium, he said, was diluted over that three week period by 300,000 gallons of sewage per day, and resulted in concentrations of plutonium so low that "if the liquid hadn't been sewage, it would have been safe to drink."

Meyers noted the leak did not violate safety regulations and the discharge was "well within permissible limits."

He said those standards had not been changed since the 1967 accident.

Meyers' report to the international regulatory agency last November was based on experiments conducted in the summer of 1975.

Using the sludge contaminated by plutonium in 1967, the lab conducted a field experiment to determine the effects of the plutonium on vegetables and to farmers if inhaled.

On a 200-square yard plot, vegetables were grown and harvested, using the sludge as fertilizer.

The study concluded that if a person were to eat one pound of the vegetables each day for fifty years, that person would receive less than one-millionth of a dose of plutonium allowed by radiation exposure guidelines.

Since plutonium is most dangerous if inhaled, a study of dust generated while working the field concluded that if a farmer worked that plot each year for fifty years, that farmer would receive one-tenthousandth of the maximum permissible dose.

Curiously, no one at the lab is 100 per cent sure how the accident occurred. And the potential for accidents with this deadly material is one of Project Survival's greatest concerns.

Though LLL cannot guarantee that a similar accident will not happen again, it has set up a monitoring system to detect the leak before effluent plutonium reaches the treatment plant.

"Whereas in 1967 we conducted sampling every few days," said Meyers, "we now use two separate radiation detection systems, attached to an automatic alarm at the fire station 24 hours a day."

If a leak occurs, the alarm registers, and the lab has two hours before the flow reaches the treatment plant. The plant is alerted to divert the contaminated flow to a holding pond.

Within five years, Meyers said, the lab will have its own retention pond on lab property.

Meyers said no plutonium has been detected in wind measurements down wind from the sludge ponds containing the leaked plutonium.

Most of the plutonium, Meyers guessed, is staying right where it is — at the bottom of the sludge pond.

New historical site

The Old Murray Schoolhouse was finally set onto its foundation next to Old St. Raymond's Church on Donlon Road in Dublin Friday. Bricklayers Union Local No. 8 donated labor to build the new foundation, and several local businesses contributed materials to the cause. The building was moved to the new site on Dec. 2 after it was declared an historical landmark by the state. The widening of Interstate 580 forced the move, and paved the way for formation of the Dublin Historical Preservation Association to create a cultural center at the site. Donations to help in renovation of the old building can be sent to: DHPS, P.O. Box 2001, Dublin, 94566.

Murray Dist. absenteeism high Friday

Student absenteeism ran at least three to four times higher than normal in the Murray School District Friday, Murray being the lone valley district and reportedly the only one in Alameda County to conduct classes on that day.

Trustees unanimously voted to hold classes Friday though receiving at least three requests from teacher and parent groups to make the day a holiday, also.

A total of 17 substitute teachers were called in Friday. The total Murray classroom staff figure is 216. Les Schmidt, curriculum coordinator, said the average teacher absenteeism during winter months is 15. The figure for the last four Fridays has ranged from 9 absent to a high of 15, prior to this past Friday.

Murray reported perfect faculty attendance, 20 out of 20.

Six teachers and one administrator were absent at Donlon, which has a classroom teaching staff of 49. Four of 29 were absent at Lydiksen and three of 25 at Dublin.

Twenty-five per cent of the student body, 186 out of 729, were absent at Wells, a seventh-eighth grade school.

Lydiksen, which also has junior high grades, had a student absenteeism rate of 19 percent — 138 out of 760.

Murray also had the lowest student absentee rate — 30 not present out of a student body of 438.

Fallon had the next lowest rate of those reporting with 8 per cent of the students absent.

Nielsen reported 12 per cent of their students did not attend classes Friday.

Donlon, which covers the Val Vista and Valley Trails sections of Pleasanton, had a 10 per cent absentee rate and Dublin reported 88 students absent out of a total enrollment of 560 or 15 per cent.

Figures for Cronin and Frederiksen were not available. Both are K-6 schools which normally have lower absenteeism than schools with junior high grades.

Livermore firm hits city contract policy

LIVERMORE — Despite the council's policy to support and foster local business, there's little or no support — or even equal chance — for Livermore firms.

These remarks were made to the council last week by Randy Schlientz, an architect with Associated Professions, a Livermore firm.

Schlientz addressed the council in an effort to have his firm awarded the bid for construction of a low-income multi-purpose center and to bring to the council's attention the fact that the city's selection process discriminates against local firms.

The bid, however, was awarded to the firm of Hirshen, Gammill, Trumbo and Cook by a 3-1 vote, Dale Turner opposed and Helen Tirsell absent, and City Manager Bill Parness commented he thought "ample consideration has been given" to Associated Professions since three of the city's six major construction projects have been awarded to the Livermore firm.

Social Concerns Committee members Rin Hartwig and Tom Haratani, who sat on the selection committee followed Schlientz to the podium. They both told the council that all four firms they interviewed for the project were qualified but the selected firm has past experience with multi-service centers.

After hearing all the testimony, Turner complimented the selection committee for their work but argued Associated Professions should receive the contract.

Don Miller agreed that "everything else being equal, there's no question we would chose a local firm," and added it was "incumbent on the council to get the best for its money, even if that means buying city cars out of town or hiring an out of town architect.

Kaiser reports new recycling center hours

Kaiser Aluminum's Pleasanton Can-Do recycling center at it's Center for Technology, 6117 Sunol Boulevard, will be open for business from 1 to 4:30 p.m. every Thursday instead of the previous operating hours of noon to 4 p.m., according to Sandi MacCalla, Can-Do program coordinator.

On Thursday, February 12, a scheduled basis and the driver performs the weighing and "instant payment" functions. In Pleasanton, Can-Do accepts cleaned and flattened household foil and cleaned TV dinner trays as well as flattened aluminum cans. Recyclers receive 15 cents per pound for aluminum cans.

SR teacher reps want time

SAN RAMON — Approval of release time for officers of teachers' organizations to conduct business has been recommended and will be acted upon at Tuesday's meeting of the San Ramon Valley Unified School District.

The school board convenes at 7:30 p.m. at the Education Center, 699 Old Orchard Drive in Danville.

Approval of an additional statement to the release time policy has been recommended by the administration.

Immediately prior to the policy action, trustees will hold a public hearing on the Certificated Employe Council's initial salary and benefits proposal for 1976-77, as submitted Feb. 2.

Trustees have received three letters of opinion on the campus smoking issue and the results of a survey taken by the California High School Parent-Faculty organization. The survey was conducted to determine the opinions of parents and students in respect to designating a trial smoking area at California High.

Trustees are also slated to take action on a recommendation which will provide for the California High School Proficiency examination. The next test, for 16 and 17-year olds, is scheduled March 27.

Initial proficiency tests were given statewide last December. Only valley testing station for that one was at Amador Valley High in Pleasanton.

The administration will also recommend that board members approve submission of a Nutrition Education Project, approve several course outlines, a project application for Outward Bound, and okay of policies dealing with 11th and 12th grade physical education and high school graduation requirements.

Staff members have reports scheduled on the needs assessment survey and progress of the development of the R-7 district park and recreation facilities.

Trustees will also be brought up to date on staff investigation of the feasibility of submitting an ESEA, Title IV planning grant for California High School. The project would involve approximately $5,000 to be used this spring for planning the implementation of the RISE report. This would result in the development of a subsequent application for implementation funds.

Blood donors needed for Tammy Schlies

PLEASANTON — An appeal is being made for blood on behalf of Tammy Schlies, who is hospitalized at Stanford with cancer.

The Alameda County Bloodmobile will be at the office of Tammy's father, pediatrician Edward Schlies, between 11 a.m. and 5 p.m. Friday. Donors must call for an appointment. Anyone who can't make it between the hours listed may call to arrange for a donation at another time and place.

Appointments should be made through Bobbie Richards at Dr. Schlies's office, 846-3288. The office is located at 2324 Santa Rita Road.

Tammy, 15, is well known at Foothill High School for her activity with the band and swim team.

Her father has been practicing here for the past nine years and is on the Valley Memorial Hospital staff.

Blood is needed to replace what has been used in treating the cancer Tammy has had for the past year and a half.

Under a change in the rules, 17-year-olds are now eligible to donate blood. The donation is a painless 15-minute process and the human body replaces the entire pint of blood within a week.

Comments invited on Livermore school plans

LIVERMORE — If a new school building will be going up near you this year, you might want to go to the Livermore Unified School District's public hearing Tuesday night.

The hearing is on the draft of the Environmental Impact Report recently published by Environmental Science Associates, Inc. Copies of the report are available in the city library for perusal.

The public school board meeting begins at 7:30 p.m. in theEducation Center, 685 Las Positas Blvd., and the hearing starts at 8 p.m. there.

Anyone who wants to testify may present their comments in writing before the meeting or may speak publicly on any complaints, suggestions or praise they might have for the extensive school district plans.

Architects have been planning the construction projects for more than six months, following a $10 million building election voters passed last March in Livermore. Here are some of the plans:

NORTHSIDE:

• Haggin Oaks Avenue at Shorehaven Circle: Christensen School, currently a grades 4-5-6 elementary school housed in portables, will become an 800-pupil full elementary school with portables surrounding a permanent "core" building. The school is now oriented toward Shorehaven and Broadmoor, but will be facing Dalton Avenue when completed with a path at the rear for access from the Greenville North tract.

EASTSIDE:

• Arroyo Seco School, a primary school that is paired with Almond Avenue School, faces on Irene Way. A permanent core building and four relocatable classrooms will enlarge the school to hold 420 children. Of the 8.29-acre site, 2.16 acres will be occupied by buildings and grounds, .76 of an acre by paved playground, 5.37 acres by turf. Big Trees Park adjoins the site.

• East Avenue: At the intermediate school, a gym, multi-media center and expanded industrial arts, home economics and science facilities head the $1.9 million renovation plan.

• Maple Street: Six classrooms will be added to Livermore High, the library will be enlarged and minor equipment and construction jobs will add to the project here, at a total $384,000 cost.

WESTSIDE:

• Frankfurt and Heidelberg Ways (off Concannon Boulevard): An elementary school now referred to as "Sunset East II" will go up on what is now an empty field. The only completely new school being built as part of this building program will have solar heating and cooling, paid for with a government grant. The $1.1 million school is planned to hold about 700 children and to open in September, 1977.

• Florence Road: Arroyo Mocho Elementary, a 400-pupil school, will have a permanent core added to its portable classrooms and 6.5 acres will be turfed.

• Wall Street: Granada High is getting two new classrooms, conversion of the multi-purpose room to a cafeteria, and long-awaited landscaping, irrigation and turfing at a total cost of $353,000.

CENTRAL:

• Murrieta Boulevard: The district is building a warehouse and offices next to the administration building on Las Positas Boulevard near Murrieta.

On the same 40-acre plot owned by the district, Rancho Las Positas Elementary School will go from a 240-pupil school to a 540-pupil facility with the addition of a core building and one new kindergarten, and relocation of eight classroom units from nearby Henry School on Alameda Drive, which will be shut down and the site sold off.

• Junction Avenue: Junction Intermediate School will be expanded and modernized, including facilities for music, gym, homemaking, science, industrial arts and a multi-media center and a new interior. The cost will be $1.5 million.

• Ladd Avenue: A bus transportation facility will be built to include an enclosed building for bus maintenance work, fuel pumps, a hoist for steam cleaning and stalls for parking 20 buses, and a cost of $288,000.

Rudy D'Ambra, the district's director of facilities management, is in charge of the big project.

Tennis club donates $700 for city lights

LIVERMORE — The Livermore Tennis Club (LTC) has presented a check for $700 as a contribution toward the lighting installation for the tennis courts at 8th and H streets to the Livermore Area Recreation and Park District (LARPD).

The check was presented by LTC President Doug Hewey to Marlin Pound, Chairman of the LARPD Board of Directors, at its meeting Wednesday night.

The presentation will be followed soon with an additional $300, bringing the fund to a total of $1,000 — half the cost of the lighting the coloring of the courts. The remaining cost will be funded by LARPD.

The lights were turned on at Granada in June 1963, a joint effort by LTC and LARPD which placed Granada in the highest rating category for tennis court lighting in Northern California.

Juveniles admit to series of burglaries

PLEASANTON — Two Foothill High School students, reported as runaways by their parents, were arrested Wednesday and admitted burglarizing the Santa Rita Inn Jan. 8.

A Sheriff's Department spokesman said the youths had been arrested during a burglary attempt in San Bernadino County earlier. Pleasanton Police also wanted to talk to the pair in connection with four burglaries committed in the recent past.

A clerk at the Inn told Sheriff's Deputies of a conservation she had with a friend concerning the burglary. When the clerk mentioned that a roll of pennies was among the missing items, the woman remembered her son had given a penny roll to his younger brother a few days earlier.

Deputies contacted the woman and discussed the burglary. Her son hadn't been home the night of the burglary and ran away from home the next day.

An investigation into the youth's activities led to the arrests. Both suspects admitted committing the Santa Rita Inn burglary, but only one confessed to taking part in a series of Pleasanton burglaries earlier.

Both were released to the custody of their parents with a notice to appear in court regarding the thefts.

Christian woman fights for Israel

Few Christian women have involved themselves so totally in the cause of justice for Israel as has Writer - editor Mary Rose Black. A person of strong humanitarian sensibilities, she was, even as a young girl, aroused to action when the Nazi holocaust dramatized the necessity for establishing a homeland for the Jews in Palestine.

Tuesday, Feb. 17, at 7:30 p.m. in the Livermore Library, Mrs. Black will be the featured speaker at a joint meeting of the Shalom Chapter of Hadassah and the California Christian Committee for Israel. As part of her lecture, Mrs. Black will make a presentation to the City of Livermore of a subscription to the Hadassah Magazine which will be available for reading at the library in an effort to promote understanding between Christians and Jews.

There will be an exhibit of artifacts from Roman times to today and the admission - free event will be devoted to this kaleidoscope of cultures from the East and West. Refreshments will be served.

Mary Rose Black, a native of Berkeley, has lectured and written on Israel since 1945, when she organized the American Christian Palestine Committee for the Intermountain States in order to arouse the public to the desperate need of the Jewish people for return of their homeland.

She was the first managing editor of "Land Reborn," the New York journal designed to interpret for American Christians the aspirations and achievements of the new State of Israel, and for justice for all the peoples of the Middle East.

Mrs. Black was a member of one of the early fact - finding missions of prominent American Christians to visit both Israel and Arab countries, being arrested in Cairo in 1952, together with former congresswoman Helen Gahagan Douglas, when their party was accused of Zionist activities, an incident which enhanced her interest in Arab - Jewish relations.

Hadassah Speaker Mary Rose Black

Both as a journalist and as the wife of the late Prof. Albert G. Black, prominent American agricultural economist, the speaker traveled and lived in many countries of the Middle East and Asia, where Dr. Black pioneered in technical assistance to newly independent countries.

The Blacks lived in Israel during five of its most trying and exciting years, when Dr. Black took part in the early development of the country's agricultural economy. Mrs. Black developed an interest in refugees. She still participates in the work of several Israeli organizations dealing with educational opportunities for youth.

When the Blacks returned to California in 1966, she founded the California Christian Committee for Israel She continues to make extensive study tours of Israel and in 1972 visited Israel's technical assistance projects in some of the African countries. She has taken a special interest in minority groups such as Arabs and Druze living under Jewish rule, a subject in which she has long had a keen interest.

Mrs. Black has been associated with Hadassah since her girlhood in Salt Lake City. She is a life member of the Berkeley Chapter and of the Ranaana Chapter in Beverly Hills. Hadassah, the Women's Zionist Organization of America, is the largest women's organization of its kind in the United States comprising over 300,000 members. Orginally formed to rescue children from wartorn Europe, the organization is now renowned in the teaching institutions and research hospitals it supports.

"Today, the humanitarian reasons for supporting Israel are made more urgent by the obvious political fact that her survival is inextricably joined with our own," says Mrs. Black. "Cut off from its roots in Israel, Western culture will dry up. Abandoning this small but crucial ally would also be the first step toward our own political and economic downfall. That the security and continued progress of Israel is vital to the entire free world is dramatized by the little known but highly significant effect Israel has had on the peoples surrounding the Jewish state."

Public meeting to set local Oakland Symphony concert

Valley residents who are interested in bringing one or more performances of the Oakland Symphony into this area are asked to participate in a Feb. 18 gathering at which such a program will be discussed.

Representatives of the symphony had previously expressed interest in extending that program into this end of the county. Proposals for a concert were dicussed informally at that time.

William Herlihy, Pleasanton's vice mayor and the acting chairman of the ad hoc group, has asked that "all interested residents in the valley" attend the meeting set for Wednesday, 8 p.m., at the Century House, 2401 Santa Rita Rd., Pleasanton.

Book drive

The American Association of University Women announces its annual scholarship book sale which provides funds for local women returning for further education.

The sale is set March 20 at The Barn in Livermore. Those with books to donate may call the area representative nearest them for pickup: Jan Foster of Pleasanton at 846-8785; Helen Stender of Dublin at 828-9028; or Pam Smith of Livermore at 447-5396.

Books may also be left at the Livermore Library and clearly marked as an AAUW donation.

March names local chairmen

Mr. and Mrs. Milton S. Dunham of Pleasanton and Mrs. Harold Hutchinson of Dublin have been appointed chairwomen of the Valley Mothers' March of Dimes by the Alameda County Chapter of March of Dimes.

Again this year, large envelopes marked "Pass Me Along" will be distributed to designated addresses. Each household will remove a smaller envelope from the package for a donation which can be mailed. Then the large "Pass Me Along Kit" is delivered to the next home on the list.

The Alameda County March of Dimes reports that more than 200,000 infants are born with physical or mental damage every year, with another 200,000 threatened by low birth weight related to brain damage.

Mardi Gras funds at work improving auditorium stage

Major recipient of 1975 Mardi Gras funds was the Amador Valley High School Auditorium, selected by the Pleasanton Junior Women's Club primarily because it is used by all segments of the community and required extensive repair.

The auditorium's antiquated stage rigging and inferior lighting were top improvement priorities, and $14,845.29 of Mardi Gras revenue was applied toward new rigging and lighting.

A committee of Juniors, high school administration personnel and the assistant superintendent of schools for business services spent months reviewing improvement recommendations, prices and plans. It was determined that the total cost of the two major improvements would total $26,150, or $12,000 beyond the available Mardi Gras funds.

In May, 1975 representatives of the Pleasanton Junior Women's Club successfully petitioned the Amador Valley Joint High School Board for an additional $12,000.

Contracts for the improvements were made in October, and the work is expected to begin shortly with completion due in spring of this year. Improvements include strengthening of existing grid work, installation of a T-bar wall and a counter - weight system, a dimmer with a 3,000 - watt plug, a control console and spotlight raceways.

These additions will increase the quality of performance and reduce the possibility of accidents such as one in which a student was injured in a fall from a ladder.

The auditorium is the only facility of its kind in the valley with a seating capacity of more than 600. Community groups, other than school - related organizations, which make use of the auditorium include the boys scouts, 4-H, the Pleasanton Recreation Department, church groups, Chabot College, Little League, Eastern Star and the Amador - Livermore Symphony.

Improvement of the Amador High Auditorium was spearheaded by Marcelline, 1975 Mardi Gras chairman, Ralph Laird, AVHS principal, and Doug Ross, assistant superintendent of business services.

'A change badly needed'

Wolfgang Klamp-a newcomer to Livermore politics

LIVERMORE — Wolfgang Klamp has always been interested in politics and after moving to Livermore with his family last May, he attended two city council meetings during the summer.

What he saw there helped him decide to seek a council seat himself.

"After seeing how the city council was currently running the city, I though it needed a change badly. I felt that I had new ideas and programs, and a new, more positive attitude," he explained.

Elaborating on his objections to the current council, Klamp said, "I just don't like the way the city council handles people coming to talk to them. I don't care for their programs and they are so opposed to any open forum or views.

"They either heckle or harrass people coming to talk before them, no matter what the case, especially Mr. Miller — although I can't say that of all the councilmen," Klamp stated.

He also is critical of the manner in which the city spends money and is opposed to the hiring of a community development director although he does want to see more industrial and commercial (as well as residential) growth.

"I'm also opposed to the way the council spends the city's money. They spend so much money on outside consultants' fees, outside attorneys' fees, and the many extravagences they afford themselves," he pointed out.

One of the extravagences Klamp cited was the hiring of a community development director.

The director, he said, would work with City Manager Bill Parness and "Mr Parness now is in charge of the planning department, trees and park departments, and other departments and he's going to delegate this to the community development director.

"We pay Mr. Parness a substantial salary and he is going to sluff off his responsibilities to a $25,000-a-year man. That money could have been put to better use," Klamp stated.

The council's "no growth policy" also irks the candidate.

"I'm not in favor of their no - growth policy. I think its restrictive and unrealistic," Klamp explained. "I think the city should have more industrial, commercial and residential growth," he added.

Rather than the 2 per cent growth rate being proposed for Livermore, Klamp thinks 4 or 5 per cent would be a more realistic figure. He is all for controlling growth lest it become "rampant."

Although he is not sure where residential growth should occur in Livermore, he points to the vicinity of First Street and Portola Avenue as a good place for a shopping center the size of Stoneridge (proposed for Pleasanton).

"A nice big shopping center would solve many problems," he noted. "It would keep people from commuting."

Merchants would be interested in locating in such a Livermore shopping center, Klamp believes, if the city's growth rate increased and Harlan Geldermann's New Town development in the Las Positas Valley was built as a separate entity.

"I believe in the free enterprise system," Klamp stated when explaining why he thinks Geldermann should be allowed to build New Town. "Livermore doesn't have any right to dominate a new community which is not in its sphere of influence to begin with and never was.

"I believe the city should concern itself more with its own problems rather than New Town," he added.

He also suggested the city sit down and talk to the developer, calling it "heresay" that Geldermann was not willing to do so.

Klamp especially was critical of Councilman Don Miller and Mayor Archer Futch, the two incumbents not seeking re-election.

"Mr. Miller and Mr. Futch and some others have backed themselves into corners and they just can't get out. They won't listen to anyone about commercial, industrial or residential growth.

"...they aren't open minded and not necessarily concerned with with the people want. The people they represent are from the Rad Lab who basically are liberal and the individual's good comes before the community's good," he stated.

Klamp is concerned about the tax rate and is opposed to the 25-cent tax override measure for additional fire and police departments personnel although he does think they probably are understaffed.

"I believe there are many other alternatives other than a tax increase to accommodate the safety tax issue," he noted.

He also believes the average citizen would benefit by growth since the tax rate would either stay level or decrease.

He is in favor of an elected mayor and if he is elected to the council he promises this would be one of the first issues he would press for.

A transportation system for Livermore is not warranted, he explained, because "the federal government would not subsidize a program in a no - growth environment."

But he added he thought "if Livermore were to take a positive and realistic growth attitude, the federal government probably would help subsidize a program."

Klamp is an insurance agent with clients throughout Alameda County. He attended Chabot College in Hayward for two years and is six units away from his business management degree from Golden Gate University in San Francisco.

A native of West Germany, his family moved to Canada when he was nine months old and ten years later moved to Chicago. He spent eight years in that city before moving to Hayward.

Klamp lives in Livermore with his wife Cheryl and five - year - old son Christopher.

Mayors vote 7-6 to support measure

Futch leads fight of drink container deposit

Alameda County Bureau

FREMONT — Thirteen mayors from the county narrowly passed a measure Wednesday night supporting legislation that would mandate deposits on soft drink and beer containers.

The fight to reach the 7-6 vote was led by Livermore Mayor Archer Futch. He was joined in the finaly tally by Pleasanton Mayor Ed Kinney and mayors from Albany, Berkeley, which has its own stringent deposit law, Fremont, Hayward and Newark.

Alameda, Emeryville, Oakland, Piedmont, San Leandro and Union City opposed the endorsement.

Futch came prepared to rebut his opposition. A similar measure stalled at an earlier meeting for lack of a majority.

John Piacentini, president of Plaid Pantry Markets, a 90 outlet retail store in Oregon, said his state's law, after which California's is patterned, has not been the "failure" advertised by the marketing media outside his state.

Retail sales were not reduced by passage of the bill, he claimed. "The first month after the Bottle Bill became law, the sale of these beverages was down in our stores," he admited. But "following the first month of lower sales our sales started picking up to where they were within three months."

He also disclaimed arguments the cost of beverages would rise. They have gone up, he said, but at the same rate as in neighboring Washington which has no Bottle Bill. He attributes the price hike to general increases in the costs of labor and materials.

Nor was "widespread unemployment" a consequence of Oregon's law, he continued, claiming labor shifted from production of new, disposable bottles to recycling of the old.

Nor are customers dissuaded by the deposit, he said. His firm conducted a private "anti-litter" drive offering one-half cent for any one-way bottle that normally would have been thrown out.

In 14 days, he said, "Oregonians returned over 3.5 million containers to our stores." More than 50,000 citizens — mainly children — worked in the drive, he added.

He claimed opponents of bill argue that retailers would pay for more bottles than they let out, and yet bottle litter would continue to dot the landscape.

"If retailers are buying back as many empty containers as they are selling, how can people still be littering these containers?", he asked.

Neither sanitation nor storage space have become problems, either, he said, charging opponents of the bill with "propoganda" in "telling non-truths about the Oregon Bottle Bill in every state in this nation for the past three years."

His opponents were out in force, too, however, including the manager of the Owens-Illinois Glass Container plant in Oakland.

Richard W. Cutter charged the Oregon litter law has not reduced litter. A state highway division survey, he said "showed that littering of beverage containers had increased by 52 percent over the same period the year before prior to the new law."

His firm's 10-machine operation in Oregon had to cut back to six after passage of the controversial act. It is up to seven, now, he said, because of the addition of a machine making bottles exclusively for a San Francisco brewery.

Owens-Illinois lost more than $4 million in removing two of the machines from the plant, he charged.

Energy conservation is minimal, he continued, saying it amounts to 2/10 of one percent.

The California bill "doesn't take into consideration industry's major recycling projects on glass, steel, aluminum and other materials. It does not speak to the goldmine inherent in solid waste management and reclamation."

Futch's motion passed after the Livermore mayor added two conditions to the Mayor's Conference endorsement:

- that the project be phased in over a five year period; and.
- that any additional costs incurred by county's and cities be absorbed by the State.

About that General Plan

The critics say "Thirty days is not enough time to study a plan of this magnitude."

The mayor responds: "You've had four years, and that should be enough studying for any plan."

The question we would ask is: "Which plan are you talking about? And for what city?" For the truth is the limits and the goals that confront this city in 1976 are nothing like the limits and the goals that we faced four years ago. The General Plan Review Committee started out talking about "a 1990 goal of 90,000 residents." That was pared down to "an optimum of 75,000, knowing what we know now."

But even since that decision, we have learned enough to revise our goal downward to 48,000 ... about one third of the "holding capacity" that was assigned this city, a short decade ago.

All of which seems to prove that whenever one generation attempts to "plan" for generations yet to come, for a city not yet achieved, then we are on dangerous ground. It also suggests that we should abandon the numbers' game, and satisfy ourselves with realistic goals that we know we can accomplish.

Given the present state of the economy and the environment, any "projection" beyond five years becomes foolhardy. Any goal into the next decade is an exercise in futility.

There is one thing we can do, right now, and we share the thinking of planning commission chairman Walter Wood in this proposal: Let the city review carefully that expanse of "high density residential" which was the logical base of a city of 75,000, or more, but that makes no sense in a community of 50,000 or less. The core area in particular has a "high density" base that is far too ambitious in the light of these new limits.

We should start paring back to a community that makes sense for 1976, for people here now, and within a budget they can afford.

BART's future

There was more news of Bay Area Rapid Transit at week's end, and the reader will have to decide which is good, which bad, and perhaps even if we'd be better off with no news at all.

"BART board pledges Valley bus service equal to the trains," the headlines said at week's end. Now, if you can construe that as "good news" then it is because you believe the trains that run close along both sides of the Bay, and under it, offer a service worth duplicating in this Valley ... even if our trains have rubber wheels and go "honk honk" instead of "Yeep Yeep."

On the other hand, there is that report from a veteran transit authority on the eastern seabord which suggests that our computerized, space-aged transit dream is in reality a nightmare. And the sooner we wake up the better.

This supports the contention advanced by this newspaper some weeks ago, and in which we suggested that "competent transit leaders know that the BART experiment has been a failure, and they are quietly arguing for a restructuring of that entire system to something that people, and not computers, can run."

Back on the good news, it is just possible that BART's new head man has a grasp of that same reality. Frank C. Herringer made a big splash as the bright, young, expensive savior of our system. There has been little time to evaluate the man's real talents in such basics as personnel management and train maintenance.

But Herringer's record on those latter two points is encouraging, and might even be revolutionary.

In just six months and two weeks on the job, Herringer has made 20 changes in his management team. That is known as "cleaning house." If it also means Mr. Herringer is getting rid of those space-age types who keep insisting we can run trains like rockets, then the new BART boss could wind up earning those 68,500 bucks we are paying him.

Adding it all up, it might be said that BART is at long last getting fewer people who keep hearing that "Yeep Yeep," and more who hear the "Honk Honk." We never could afford the one; at least we can understand the other.

San Ramon City

The search for an answer to the future of San Ramon Valley has been long, and it has been difficult. But it is the kind of challenge the people of that lovely valley can handle, without recourse to lengthy litigation.

We would hope those who are displeased with the prospect of being part of a new "City of San Ramon Valley" would be able to express their arguments during the pre-election process. That is the way our best decisions, our most enduring decisions, are made.

Going to court to challenge, to exempt or to overthrow any incorporation movement is an abuse of judicial responsibility. It is also an insult to the intelligence of the electorate.

The prospect of creating a new city is exciting, challenging, even troublesome. But it is a question the residents of those several unincorporated communities must resolve for themselves.

Developmental interests would be especially advised to sit this one out. The short-term concern of any one subdivision must surely yield in this case to the majority view drawn from a community that will prevail long after the builder has gone, and the tract name is forgotten.

The week in retrospect

A new 'old Tom?'

It is ironic that a man who has been part of acts or movements degrading the system of government in these United States is now able to take advantage of the system to further his points of view.

We refer to the apearance of Tom Hayden, a candidate for the Democratic nomination to Congress here in California, Tuesday at Pleasanton Middle School.

This writer does not oppose the right of candidates for political office appearing at public schools — that is guaranteed under the Civic Center Act.

The fact of his pending appearance does make it convenient, though, for this writer to establish a "platform" from which to speak on the apparent views of people like Hayden.

To avoid getting tangled in ideologies or a prolonged discussion of events such as the "Chicago 7" and the Democratic Convention of eight years ago, suffice to say that Hayden and former cronies (if, indeed, they are "ex") Abby Hoffman, Jerry Rubin and Bill Kuntsler have never been known for moderate view points on anything regarding the system of government in the United States, our role in foreign affairs and the status of so-called minorities in this country.

Hayden and his ilk long-ago were labeled as radicals or in the vanguard of the "new left."

I do not know if Hayden woul agree with that arbitrary labeling. But the fact is his actions of the past, as reported by the media, would tend to substantiate that label.

Hayden's challenge of John Tunney for the Democratic nomination is humorous in some respects. Here is a man (Tunney) who is consciously or subconsciously doing a respectable imitation of the late John F. Kennedy and a highly mediocre job in Congress. The son of former heavyweight boxing champion Gene Tunney has even incurred the wrath of a sizable group within his own party.

To the point where Hayden could yet mount a serious challenge to another Tunney term in Congress.

One thing I believe certain, whoever gets the Democratic nomination will be voted to Congress to join senior Senator Alan Cranston.

Hence, there is a greater need to find out where Hayden "is now" on issues affecting this state. I, for one, would not want to see another radical zealot runninf around Congress, dredging up the ghosts of Watergate at every opportunity and taking aim at every comment or decision by President Gerald Ford.

There is also a need for the valley populus to see and hear the Republican and Independent candidates.

The closest any prospective GOP Senatorial candidate has come to the valley was last week's appearance in Union City by S.I. Hayakawa, former president of San Francisco State College.

It is this writer's opinion that Hayakawa, of all the prospective candidates, would best serve California in Congress.

As for Hayden, perhaps somebody should remind him (if he hasn't verified it yet) that their are damn few countries in this world with a system that tolerates/understands revolutionary-types who later run for public office.

Pleasanton plan

Editor, The Times:

Your article on the acceptance of the general plan by the City Council Monday does not reflect the concern felt regarding the way the issue was railroaded thru. The plan may be the best thing that has ever happened to Pleasanton, but why was there not time for more than 3 weeks review from the time the final element was presented to the public to adoption?

The Council's action in ignoring requests for more time unfortunately follows the pattern where they have ignored other input from the public such as at the public safety hearing, and during the redevelopment fiasco. ...

In addition we now find that the Council later Monday night passed a resolution reducing the time the public has for commenting on a draft environmental report from 45 to 30 days! This is really high-handed because it was done based on an obscure, vague agenda item, after most of the public had left because it was so late.

Twenty-one days to review the massive environmental portion of the general plan, but even at its worst the City Council will permit 30 days for some specific project! Incongruous.

No wonder the Council has a problem with credibility.

One teacher's view

(The following guest editorial was written by Dick Waldron, a director of the Amador Valley Teachers Association and recent recipient of the group's We Honor Ours (WHO) award. AVTA is a teachers group in the Pleasanton Joint School District)

It appears that the Rodda Bill (Senate Bill 160, Collective Bargaining) spells out clearly many of the things that have caused misunderstandings between AVTA, the Administration, and the school board.

We in AVTA have been through a period of growing pains arising from our negotiating position. Rather than negotiating from a position of strength, our negotiations were based on good reasons and usually the administration and school board were reasonable.

Our first big disagreement came over the district's grievance policy which our teachers felt was inadequate. An impasse was reached when the administration and the school board refused to accept changes in this policy. Agreement was finally reached on a modified grievance policy after much negotiation. With this more workable policy in effect, two grievances have been processed with the teachers' rights being upheld. However, this experience demonstrated that the grievance policy needs further modification.

Two developments in the fall of 1975 added new dimensions to the negotiating procedure. First, the high school teachers' organization elected to negotiate on their own. Secondly, the administration and the school board decided to employ a professional negotiator (Keith Breon of Portola Valley) and this step complicated communications between the Certificated Employees Council and the school board.

Negotiations were slowed to such an extent that for the first time ever they were postponed for the summer recess. At this time the negotiations are still not complete.

As you can see, a change in the relationship between AVTA, the administration, and the school board has been taking place. During this process there have been disagreements and misunderstandings. Relations between the three partners in the negotiating process are not as easy and affable as they used to be.

Hopefully, the Rodda Bill (SB160) will help put our relationship on a more business-like basis by better defining where each party stands and eliminating many of the misunderstandings that may have led to hard feelings. Now we can make use of the new collective bargaining bill to work out firm working agreements between the school board and the teachers. This should involve better communication between teachers and school board as each party in negotiation will have a better idea of where the other stands. This will reduce misunderstanding and mistrust and this will benefit the children of the district in whom we are all most interested.

Article 1 of the Rodda Bill states: "It is the purpose of this chapter to promote the improvement of personnel management and employer - employe relations within the public school system of the State of California ... and to afford certificated employes a voice in the formulation of educational policy."

Let us make our voice firm, reasonable and constructive, ever dedicated to the improvement of education in our district.

round the town

What really amazes me is the pitfalls that occur even within a perfect marriage. Take for instance the exemplary partnership that abides at our house.

It was one of those evenings when all was well with the world. The Dachshund had not done anything to the kitchen floor during our day-long absence. The postal person had not delivered any unexpected bills, or advance notices from oncoming relations, her side. Even the washing machine had skipped its daily inclination to slop soap suds all over the playroom floor.

A near-perfect day in a near-perfect marriage. And then it happened.

"I see in the paper where Gerald Ford admits he can't save a dime, even on his salary," I announced, with hardly a hint of sarcasm. "Not a very good omen for the rest of us work-a-day slaves," I conclude.

The two-minute silence that followed should have warned me I was on dangerous ground.

"I do the very best I can," she said, finally breaking the ice cap. "You should try managing the house with the way prices are these days."

"I did not have reference to your management of the household budget," I protested, "and was in fact talking about two other people who live 3000 miles from here, or thereabouts." I let that rebuff settle in for a minute or two, before I gave her one final shot. "I am amazed, now that you mention it, how little we set aside ... with both of us drawing a paycheck and everything."

Loud shuffling of evening paper follows. Experience teaches me that she is not really reading, just thinking up the next line.

"You like to eat well, and meat prices are atrocious," she says, firmly. "You should come shopping with me ... a lot of the husbands do, you know. You should see the look on their faces when the clerk starts totalling up their bill."

It is the standard trap. The "if you can't stand the kitchen don't try to cook" routine. She knows I hate to shop. Particularly in supermarkets. Wandering up and down those aisles gives me claustrophobia. Socializing in the soap section makes me deathly ill.

"I am not, repeat NOT, challenging your shopping routine," I announce, wondering how in blazes I ever got myself into this mess. But I can be as stubborn as she can. "It is simply a matter of living within our means, and having a little something left over for our old age. Sometimes I think the whole country is eating for today, and to hell with tomorrow."

"I haven't bought a new pair of shoes in over a year," she declares. I am about to ask what that has to do with the price of hamburger, but she presses on. "Most of my dresses are two years old, or more. This skirt I'm wearing I bought almost ten years ago."

"These pants were bought sometime between the Korean and Vietnam conflicts," I assert, "but that is hardly the meat of this discussion, if you'll pardon the pun." She isn't about to pardon anything.

"You should see what some of the wives are wearing these days. Dresses that cost $250 and more. They spend as much on clothes in a year as I will spend in five years." She is now on page 38 of the evening Trib, and hasn't really read a blessed word.

"The point of this little discussion is not what we don't spend," I remind her in my most husbandly manner, "but rather what we don't save. I was merely wondering how we can go through two paychecks like we do, and not leave even a tip for the piggy bank."

"A lot of the girls get their hair done every week, and at $20 per visit," is her answer. "I get my mine cut every six weeks or so. You saved a bundle when you got a gal with naturally curly hair." It is one of her favorite speeches, and one that always leaves me with no rejoinder whatsoever. How can you attack naturally curly hair?!

"I think I will take the dog for a walk," is my Alternative Plan B. When in doubt, get out.

"Be certain to put down some fresh newspaper in the kitchen," she announces. "The dog has been messing the floor a lot lately."

I shall give the dog the front page of the evening Trib, I decide. Including that item on the president's mismanagement of the household budget. A man who can't keep his wife in line on daily expenses has no business trying to run the whole blessed country.

Sound and Fury

Walt Hecox

Fat bellied black clouds are hovering above these parched valleys while I write this, waiting to pour their damp cargo over the thirsty land.

They have come too late, I fear. For the first time for as long as I can remember wild barley is not rising from the recently dampened soil, green spears reaching for any spark of sunlight.

There have been other dry years. We prayed for rain at the Cupertino Union Church during the late twenties while D.J. Sedgewick told the kids at the Cupertino Union School praying was fine and helpful but we had better build some water conservation dams to help the prayers along.

The dams were constructed and underground water tables rose, then fell with the population explosion of the forties and rose again in the fifties when more holding facilities were constructed.

No one where I lived prayed for rain during the fifties.

We settled down in the big house where privately owned Locust Drive fed its traffic into the county road in December of 1951 and the moisture moved in with us.

Sometimes we prayed, but never for rain.

We prayed the next check from a publisher would beat the wolf to the door, prayed the raging forest fire on the upper slopes of Loma Prieta would not turn north and wipe out our home, prayed our house would not slide down the mountain into Los Gatos Creek during the angry winter and prayed help would come when the mountain behind us turned to whipped chocolate cream and began sliding into the bedroom window.

But we never prayed for rain.

The rains always came during the winter in the mountains above Los Gatos.

They came in tropical torrents, swelling the streams and creating brooks and waterfalls where none had existed a day or so earlier.

They filled the dams and the spillways and turned clear water muddy while fighting its way through twisting canyons to Lexington Lake and the spillway which released it eventually into San Francisco Bay.

Hillsides crumbled and rolled into ravines on granite ball bearings lubricated with mud.

Telephone lines blew down, transformers exploded and highways crumbled under the assault.

The rain paid no attention. It spilled from the porous clouds in endless sheets and showers, drowning the drunken earth while southwest winds shook the shivering pines.

Eventually we fled, south to Santa Barbara, Del Mar, San Diego and beyond the border to Rosarita Beach.

Sometimes the rains followed us, but the water warmed as we traveled south, fury spent by the time we reached the border so they were almost benevolent when we arrived at Rosarita.

When we returned we could not believe the tables. That long and lovely canyon we called home soaked up 60 inches of rainfall during an average year, as much as 90 during damp ones.

We repaired the damage, fixed our fences, hauled dirt from the space between the railroad tie retaining wall and the house and by the time we were done it was springtime.

Wild iris spread timid, delicate petals into the sparkling air. The locust trees bloomed, bright pink blossoms which fell like peppermint snow on the lower patio.

Poppies splashed the meadows with color, wild strawberries covered the old railroad bed beside Hooker Creek and fat trout loafed in the shade of boulders or submerged tree roots.

Something bloomed all the rest of the year, from iris to lupin and eventually buckeyes and when we walked through the deep woods which shaded us from the hot summer sun we knew the rains were needed and were worth the trouble they caused.

Our water came from springs in the ground despite the giant San Jose Water Company pipeline which snaked through the canyon a few hundred feet below our house.

Our garden sprouted with a thousand or maybe ten thousand bright blue flowers which drew their moisture from ground moistened by winter rains.

The oaks, the pines, Locust and buckeye all pressed thirsty mouths to the moist earth.

Nothing and no one in those damp hills ever wanted for rain or needed prayers for anything except mercy where water is concerned.

Which is why I shudder now when I drive past meadows where barley sprouted, died and will not sprout again. Where cattle graze in feeding bins instead of lush meadows. The place old man winter couldn't find in January of 1976.

And I wonder where the seeds will be when water finally finds this valley.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) You could run into some complications socially today, particularly if you're involved with a friend who wants to dominate the show.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) Don't make any important moves affecting your household today without first talking them over with your mate. Be sure you're in accord.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) Normally things of a mental nature are your cup of tea. Today, your concentration is not up to par. Doublecheck your work.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) Help those who are worthy, but don't open your purse today to someone who never repays. Let him seek aid elsewhere.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) Be extra tactful with close associates today, as they may not be as cooperative as usual. You'd be wise to make some concessions.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) Don't put off any matters of importance today. They could be far more difficult to handle later.

LIBRA (Sept. 23Oct. 23) It's good to be independent, but it's also smart to know when not to buck the majority. Don't champion unpopular issues today.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) Your image is a trifle fragile today. Take pains not to do anything that might call unfavorable attention to yourself.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) Think before you speak today. Don't unwittingly rouse the ire of a listener with a thoughtless remark.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) If you become too enmeshed in another's financial affairs today it may wind up costing you something out of your own pocket.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) In a competitive situation today you'll have a slight edge, but you'll still have to earn your victory.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) You may have a tendency today to make things harder for yourself than they should be. Don't be your own worst enemy.

your birthday

Feb. 15, 1976

This coming year should be an exciting one for you. You're likely to pursue new goals. Chance situations will be responsible for altering your perspectives.

Helping the 1976 Twin Valley YMCA Sustaining Membership Drive off to a good start are Livermore Y's Men's Club special gifts chairman Chuck Anderson; board member and Pleasanton businessman Joe Boatright; Livermore Rotary Club President Bob Tiecke; Pleasanton businessman Gene Finch, and Y's Men's Club President Bob Edwards.

To support YMCA

Men's group launches drive

The Livermore Y's Men's Club, a service organization of the Twin Valley YMCA, will kick off its 1976 Sustaining Membership Drive next Tuesday.

The goal will be to raise $17,000 and $3,900 of that figure already has been achieved by the 16-member Men's Club through its annual Christmas tree sales lot.

The money will help fund the Y Indian Guides, Princesses and Trail Blazers with new programs such as a pre-school movement education program and a club for fatherless boys planned to start during the next three months.

A five-year plan for future program and facility development also will be designed.

A task force of about 120 volunteers will seek gifts and pledges of varying amounts to help fund the Twin Valley YMCA, which serves the Livermore, Pleasanton, Dublin and Sunol areas.

Basic gift is $25; Century Club, $100; Patron, $250, and Benefactor, $1,000 and over.

Heading the Livermore Y's Men's Club drive are Dick Piepenburg, campaign chairman; Jake Foster, assistant chairman; Chuck Anderson, special gifts; Bob Lucena, programs, and Jerry Lemm, areas.

"Fund raisers have found that people give to people ... not just to causes, hence the success of the YMCA in raising funds," said Piepinburg.

Most shops open Mon.

You can go on a shopping spree just about anywhere in the valley Monday and if you're in Livermore, you can stop by the library and read a book.

But all other activities will cease tomorrow in honor of George Washington's birthday.

All U.S. Government and Alameda County offices will observe the birthday of the first president of this country, which means there will be no mail delivery and all county-operated libraries will be closed.

City offices in Pleasanton and Livermore will be closed as will the Valley Community Services District offices.

Banks and schools also will be closed for the day and the Livermore Library will be one of the few institutions open for business as usual. Hours are from 9 a.m. to 9 p.m.

Parents, school officials set talks on graduation

PLEASANTON — Three neighborhood coffees have been scheduled for parents of Pleasanton Middle School students to acquaint them with graduation activities planned for eighth graders and other topics.

Ron Alsup, Pleasanton principal, and a high school representative will be there to answer questions.

The schedule of neighborhood coffees is as follows: Wednesday, Feb. 18 at 10 a.m., Mrs. Chun, 773 Gamay Ct.; Friday, Feb. 20 at 10 a.m., Mrs. Severin, 4513 Mirador Dr.; Tuesday, Feb. 24, 7:30 p.m., Pleasanton School library, Mrs. Calkins.

Information will be available on what classes are required for graduation from eighth grade, the milling system at Amador Valley High, educational opportunities, other than college, available to teenagers.

Court is now council chambers

PLEASANTON — The Pleasanton Justice Court lost its name Monday.

City council members have begun to call the building the city council chambers.

Judge William Gale left the court at the end of the year when he retired and his successor's chambers are in the Livermore Municipal Court building. The Pleasanton building no longer is a justice court, although city council agendas, printed some time ago, still refer to the building at 30 W. Angela St. as the justice court.

city Attorney Ken Scheidig told the council that part of the building can be described as the city attorney's annex because it houses him and his assistant, Harvey Levine, and their staff. The housing authority also has offices in the building.

The council agreed Monday to extend the building's lease for another two years. The city pays $1,175 per month for the lease and subleases a small occasional office space to Alameda County for $300 per month. Under the old arrangment, the county was the prime lessor and charged the city $300 per month to use the courtroom as a council chamber.

'Eight lanes'

PLEASANTON — City council candidate Ken Mercer favors widening the Dublin Canyon bottleneck on Interstate 580 to eight lanes, he said in a press release.

The lanes will be constructed, but two of the lanes will be covered because of legal action by the Sierra Club. Mercer feels that as long as the seventh and eighth lanes are there they should be used.

"Opening up one lane in each direction is not growth-inducing as some people insist, but it is a lot safer," he said. "Since the city council has put a 48,700 population ceiling for 1996 in Pleasanton an additional lane won't create any further growth inducements," said Mercer."

"People have a right to travel that congested freeway as safely as is possible. You can't measure one injury or death and all of the associated suffering against an additional lane of traffic on a freeway," said Mercer. He added he will do everything possible to work for an expansion to eight lanes if he is elected.

'Clean industry'

PLEASANTON — Gene Finch "prefers to be known as a candidate with the ability to help attract industry to Pleasanton," he said in a press release.

"As a businessman in Pleasanton, I foresaw the need for clean, light industry and commercial development prior to 1974. I advocated then, as I do now, that we should waive connection fees and defer payments on a schedule which would be fair and equitable to the city and the developer," said Finch.

"I can make sound judgments as we consider new industry and, as a businessman can speak the language of commercial and industrial people as they consider Pleasanton as a good site for their business and industry. This industrial and commercial development would certainly enhance the city from many aspects.

"The tax base would be expanded, making the load of the already burdened homeowner's taxes lighter as well as providing jobs and services for Pleasanton and the valley," said Finch.

New Life church approved for site at Hopyard Road

PLEASANTON — Some of their new neighbors didn't look too happy, but the New Life Fellowship Church won approval to build a church at Hopyard Road and Valley Trails Drive South.

The vote was 4-0 with Commissioner Robert Butler absent. A few Valley Trails residents said they had no objection to the church per se, but preferred to see the land zoned for single family residential use.

One resident thought that the nighttime uses of the church might add traffic which would jeopardize youths coming from the Youth Sports Park at night. He noted that youth sports parents have lobbied the a city unsuccessfully for traffic light in the vicinity.

Commissioner Howard Garrigan felt that rezoning the land from its current multiple designation to single family homes would create street access problems, perhaps necessitating construction of a new street to serve the land. "A church is more desirable than single family homes there," he told the neighbors.

The residents also complained that only 15 or so homes were notified about the planning commission's public hearing. They felt that everyone in the tract should have been notified because the intersection in question is the tract entrance.

Commissioners responded that the law requires only the notification of residents within 300 feet of the proposed zoning change.

Boy faces Pasteur treatment if white poodle not found

DUBLIN — Four - year - old Ted Vrabel will have to endure a series of rabies shots next week, unless somebody produces the small white poodle that bit him on Tuesday.

The dog, believed to have no collar, was on Starward Drive near Vomac Road. A man and woman were spotted walking their own dog, on a leash, nearby. The Vrabels hope they will remember the 10:30 a.m. incident and help in identification of the dog that bit little Ted.

Anyone in the Dublin area knowing of a small white dog that a four - year - old could take for a poodle is asked to call Mr. or Mrs. Ted Vrabel at 828-2479.

If the dog is identified, it will be quarantined in the county dog pound for 10 days for observation to make sure it doesn't have rabies. There's a $25 observation fee and in addition, the dog's owners will be required to have their pet vaccinated against rabies right away. If the animal has already been vaccinated, Animal Control authorities will allow it to be quarantined at home, avoiding the $25 fee.

If the Vrabels don't find the dog, Ted will have to go through with a series of abdominal injections with anti-rabies serum, just in case the animal that bit him was rabid. Rabies is a fatal nervous-system disease and even the treatment is risky.

Livermore ed center landscaping studied

LIVERMORE — The landscaping of the school district's Education Center at Rincon Avenue and Las Positas Boulevard should be completed when it builds its proposed warehouse and office addition at that location.

That was the recommendation of the city's Design Review Committee to the Livermore Valley Unified School District, made at a special meeting Tuesday night when the district's warehouse and office addition plans were studied.

The school district is not bound to follow the city committee's recommendations but is expected to take them under consideration.

Committee recommendations were that landscping for both the Education Center and proposed building projects be completed at the time the new projects are constructed; tall trees be planted on the back property lines to the south and west since the buildings themselves are low and the trees would improve the profile with a tall backdrop, and minor modifications be made to the parking lot.

According to Herb Street, Livermore's chief building inspector, the special meeting was attended by the architect for the projects and a representative of the school district.

The session proved so successful, he added, another meeting has been scheduled for March 9 for committee review of the remainder of the school district's building project.

Councilman reports on PO woes

PLEASANTON — Councilman William Herlihy had his previously announced visit with Postmaster Mark Foster.

Herlihy had complained a few weeks ago tht long postal lines were a great inconvenience when the new 13 cent stamps went on sale around the first of the year.

He thought Foster could improve personnel procedures to give customers better service and told the council he would meet with Foster about the problem.

Foster reportedly told Herlihy that he took several steps to try to solve the problem. He had a buzzer installed so that customers could ring for more service when the line got too long. "However," said Herlihy, "I heard that seven people were standing in line one day with only one person on the counter."

Foster also told Herlihy that the post office will move to its new, larger building soon, but it won't add any more personnel. "They'll have room for a longer line," quipped City Manager Bill Edgar.

MATADOR GOES HIGH FOR A REBOUND
Mike Fracisco (22) aids Mat victory

In an atmosphere too sparked with tension to permit grace, form or fluidness of movement, Granada High thumped out a 57-54 victory at Amador Friday night to remain in the EBAL basketball chase.

The Matadors now trail the Dons by one game with three to play in the league season. Amador must win two of its remaining games to cinch a tie for its third consecutive league crown. It needs to win all three to insure a berth in the North Coast Section championships at season's end.

No one could look that far ahead, however, Friday night in a contest that was all consuming.

The game belonged in a dingy midwest snake pit where weather-beaten spectators gather, the kind who appreciate games among Milwaukee brick layers and Chicago butchers instead of Harlem race horses or Malibu golden boys.

In the final minute it was better suited to the Bronx Zoo.

Amador had rallied from an eight - point deficit to trail by just three with 21 seconds to play. That's when a lot of pent up emotion broke loose.

Joe Wujek, who would sink two deciding free throws with five seconds left in the game, surged past the Amador defense on a break away. He was clobbered from behind by the Dons' Rob Yackley. Wujek found the floor with a sickening thud. Coach Pat Fracisco and the rest of the Matadors charged the floor and suddenly hysteria reigned.

Fracisco was whistled for a technical and ordered back to his bench. Still fuming at what he considered a deliberate hatchet, he shot a menacing glance at the Amador bench, and then followed up with a five-fingered salute.

Meanwhile Wujek connected on one of two free throws, and Amador's Mike Hill hit the technical to make the score 54-51 Granada.

Don Hall scored for the Dons with 14 seconds to play and the margin was suddenly one point. Scott Campbell hit a free throw for the Matadors and Yackley responded with one for the Dons. Wujek rebounded Yackley's second charity attempt, however and went to the foul line with five seconds left.

With one arm throbbing from his Yackley collision, and the gymnasium vibrating with sound, Wujek calmly converted both free throws to wrap up the win.

Fracisco said after the game he would take his junior forward to the hospital for an examination of the arm.

"Wujek is a class kid," said Amador coach Skip Mohatt after the game. "He could make any team a winner.

We just made too many mistakes tonight," Mohatt added. "We didn't play very good defense at all, we just didn't get back in time to cover a man."

Wujek scored 17 points in a thrilling individual duel with Yackley. Rob responded with 13 points, and led a gallant Amador comeback in the fourth quarter.

That's when he grabbed most of his game-high 12 rebounds. Yackley twice brought Amador to within three points of Granada down the stretch.

But the Matadors slipped behind Amador's delinquent defense for some easy buckets and breathing room.

Mike Fracisco and Vance Rushing scored 10 points apiece for Granada. Fracisco pumped in six during the third quarter, stole the ball once to set up a Rushing field goal, and drew an offensive charge from Hill to give the Amador captain three fouls.

Granada played much of the contest without center Lee Brennan who had three fouls before halftime, and fouled out with 7:03 left in the game.

The grimness of the game was evident in the first half when the two teams combined for just 44 points.

Jones leads MV over California

Bob Devincenzi's best performance of the season offset the loss of all-East Bay guard Ron Low as the Monte Vista Mustangs took a routine, 78-63, East Bay Athletic League basketball win from California High Friday night.

Low, the EBAL's second-leading scorer, sprained an ankle in Wednesday's loss to Amador and was in street clothes and on crutches Friday.

Devincenzi apparently saw nothing unlucky about Friday the 13th, however, as he scored 22 points and earned his highest grade of the season on the MV rating chart.

A typically explosive performance by Kevin Jones kept Devincenzi from grabbing high-scorer honors; KJ with his wide assortment of drives and long-range jumpers meshed 23.

The Mustangs' Lance Blanshei led the game in rebounds with 11, although at the team level Cal had 38 to MV's 33. Rick Lackey had nine for Cal while Jim Lucas had six. Devincenzi and Jones had three assists apiece for MV.

The Grizzlies forced the pace in the early going and twice led by as many as six in the first quarter.

Cal's zone press, which had staggered through Wednesday's game with San Ramon came to life in the first quarter to give rise to Cal upset hopes.

Coach Bill Herrera, formerly head coach at Monte Vista, had no explanation for his team's improvement — especially in light of the fact that MV is statistically better than the Wolves.

"I don't know why, but we always seem to do better against Monte Vista than San Ramon," Herrera said.

Monte Vista took the lead for good on a Jones jumper from the left corner with 3:19 to play in the first half.

SR tops Falcons

For awhile Friday night it appeared Foothill High School's basketball team was going to make visiting San Ramon its first victim of the EBAL season.

The Falcons had jumped off to an early first-quarter lead and were in the game for three periods.

In the end, however, the magic shooting eye of San Ramon's Jim Hogeboom was the difference as the Wolves took a 75-55 victory over the winless Falcons.

All Hogeboom did was can 22 points, 16 of them in the last quarter, and pull off 13 rebounds to lead both teams.

The senior forward sat out much of the third quarter with four fouls before returning in the final period to lead the Wolf victory.

San Ramon led, 49-42 at the third quarter break. The Wolves then scored the first six points of the fourth period with Hogeboom canning two field goals and Fritz Venker one.

From then on the Wolves gradually pulled away to their fifth EBAL victory against six defeats.

Foothill came out firing in the first period as center Steve Sperber dominated the boards and worked inside for easy lay-ins. The Falcons had a 20-12 advantage at the first quarter break.

The Wolves began to play with more authority in the second period as Brad Blake and Ed Aitken started hitting from the outside.

The Wolves went into the lead, 27-26 with four minutes left in the period and took a 33-31 margin into the locker room at halftime.

Aitken gave Hogeboom some strong scoring support with 15 markers, most of them on outside shots. Brad Blake added 13 and Mark Hutchinson 10 for the Wolves.

Both teams had 27 rebounds. Sperber grabbed off nine to lead the Falcons.

After the game Wolf coach John Clawson admitted his team started the game slowly.

"We missed our first few shots and we just got into a slump," he said. "It was just one of those things. Hogeboom found the range in the second half and we got going." The Cowboys have three tough games coming up with Livermore, Amador and Monte Vista on the list.

Livermore's game saver

Mike Zampa

Round up the student body and lead 'em in one final cheer for Curt Lehew who passed away Thursday evening.

He went out on the tail end of a championship season which was fitting, albeit too damned soon.

But don't think he left Granada High School or the kids of Livermore orphaned. When they tee up the football next Fall, Curt's spirit will still be wheeling and dealing, raising the money that juices the athletic machine.

Curt Lehew, 44, father of four and benefactor to kids sports for a dozen years died last week after a four - year illness. Don't send flowers though, because Curt wasn't a flowery guy. He'd rather you donate to the Granada Supporters, the booster club that keeps Matador sports out of the red. And don't view it as a tribute to his memory, do it to help the kids. That's the way Lehew always did it.

Granada baseball and football players need jackets, and one way or another, Curt is going to get them the cash.

He hasn't failed yet.

By rough estimates, Curt Lehew has been instrumental in raising $15,000 to aid Granada athletics. He organized dances, staged bingo games and hawked raffle tickets to keep the coffers filled.

When it came time to build a snack bar or a press booth, Curt scared up the material. You didn't ask how, because he probably put the arm on a few friends to do it. You just knew the stuff would be there when the building began.

Curt Lehew was a 6-2, 170 pounder who used to play baseball in high school. His speech was gruff, spicy, befitting a ball player and manager. His manner was direct, his words straight from the guts.

"He never flowered anything," says Pat Duke, probably Lehew's closest friend during their last 18 years in Livermore. "He was gruff and honest, and if he had something to say to you, you'd better be prepared to listen."

Duke coached against Lehew in Babe Ruth baseball, and occassionaly umpired Curt's games. They were best friends who hardly spoke during the six months of baseball season, being too busy beating each other's brains out.

Curt's teams won few championships during his managerial stint. Duke says that's because he worried more about a kid's opportunity to play than the team's chances of winning.

Lehew was one of those sorely needed youth coaches, the kind who look out for the kids first.

"He was never phoney, and he would never string a kid along," Duke says. "And he really admired the smaller kids, took care of them.

"He didn't like umpires," Duke recalls vividly, and he always yelled at them the loudest. But in Babe Ruth we had kids do the officiating and Curt was always the first to stand up for them in meetings."

Lehew has three sons, one who played baseball for his father, another who just wound up a soccer career at Granada High. He also has one daughter.

The youngest son, Dennis, played for Granada's championship team in the final football season of Curt's life. It had to be a time of fulfillment for a father who'd given so much to support the pro-

Snead leads Open

SAN DIEGO (AP) — Big, easy-going J.C. Snead, still carrying a lucky, four-leaf clover he found Thursday, fired a solid, five-under-par 67 and opened an imposing, five-stroke lead Saturday after the third round of the $180,000 Andy Williams-San Diego Open Golf Tournament.

Snead, seeking a repeat of his 1975 victory in this tournament, had to turn back several challenges before he established firm control with a 54-hole total of 200, a distant 16-under-par on the wet and soggy, 5,047 yard South course at the Torrey Pines Country Club.

Snead started the cold, cloudy day in a tie for the lead with Mike Morley. After breaking that, he had to turn back bids by Peter Oosterhuis of England, Bruce Crampton of Australia and 46-year-old Don January.

The pivotal change came when Snead was playing the 17th hole. He threw his soft, high approach only inches from the cup for a tap-in birdie. January went into a sand trap on the same hole and bogeyed for a two-stroke swing in Snead's favor.

At about the same time, Crampton and Oosterhuis — playing in different groups — were encountering their own troubles. The gangling Oosterhuis hit his second shot into the pond that guards the 18th green and Crampton three-putted the 16th. A tight race was changed in seconds to a potential run-away.

Snead's score was, by four strokes, a 54-hole record for this tournament.

January, who once closed to within a single shot of the lead, drifted back on the closing holes.

Livermore romps over Dublin

Rebounding from last Wednesday's loss to Granada, Livermore took advantage of a sloppy shooting night by Dublin to grab a 68-56 victory in EBAL basketball action Friday night in Livermore.

With the win, the Cowboys, although virtually out of the EBAL title race, improved their league record to 8-3. Dublin, meanwhile, had its three game win skein snapped and fell into a tie for fourth place with Monte Vista and San Ramon at 5-6.

After playing the Cowboys even for two quarters, the Gaels managed to convert just four field goals in thirty-two attempts in the second half, a disastrous 13% shooting performance.

Despite Dublin's cold showing, the 'Poke's failed to put the game away until they ran off a 19-4 spree spanning the late third and early fourth quarters.

With Dublin ahead 36-35, Steve Christopher and Ted Wood hit jumpers for the 'Poke's to take a three point lead. While the Gaels were missing twelve shots in succession, Livermore's Tim Jenkins rallied the 'Poke's to a 48-40 third quarter margin by hitting two key jumpers at the end of the quarter.

Wood, the EBAL's top scorer, led all scorers with 26 points, cashing in on 9 of 21 field goal attempts. Jenkins broke out of a personal slump to follow Wood with 14 points, while Groth added 13 for the winners.

Kevin Huska paced a balanced Gael scoring attack with 13 points, while foul-plagued Cory Porter and pivot man Cliff Johnson each contributed 10 points.

Dublin broke fast in the first quarter, taking a 7-2 lead after three minutes. Livermore came back, however, to tie the contest before the end of the quarter.

The 'Pokes took 30-23 lead midway through the next quarter and showed signs of breaking the game open. However, they missed seven of their last eight shots in the period, as Dublin sneaked up to tie the game on Johnson's driving lay-in seconds before the half.

AMADOR CAGER REACHES HIGH FOR THE REBOUND
Don Jayne Kuhns (10) outleaps Mats
(By Janelle Powers)

Girls' basketball
Macon sparks Dons

Carmen Macon poured in 18 points and hauled down 15 rebounds to spark Amador to a 44-36 victory over Granada in EBAL basketball action Thursday night.

The win boosts the Dons' record to 7-3 and into a tie with Granada for second place, two games behind league leader Monte Vista. The Mustangs took the night off and will play Cal High at a later date.

It was a hard fought game until the final quarter. Granada took the lead, 19-17, with less than three minutes remaining in the first half, but Amador's Carolyn "Clutch" Hill canned two buckets to push the Dons out in front, 21-19, at the intermission.

Macon, playing one of the best games in her three year varsity career, outleaped a weary Mat defense in the final period to score nine of her teams 15 points as the Dons netted six unanswered points to put the game out of sight for Granada. The Mats had trouble locating the basket as they shot a miserable 16 for 58 from the floor.

"It was our passing and plays under the basket in the final quarter that shot 'em down," commented Amador mentor Lottie Bain.

Jamie Watson netted eight points for the winners, while teammate Hill added six. Cheryl Withoft and Jayne Kuhns had a fine night defensively as they combined for 23 rebounds and scored four points each.

Sheryl Common tallied 12 points to pace the losers, while Cheryl Wood and Lynn Bousliman chipped in nine each.

Jean Borton's eight points led the Amador junior varsity club to a 24-16 victory over the Mats. Kim Cupps paced the losers with eight.

Dublin, behind an outstanding 23 point performance by soph center Joanne Callender, handed a late starting Livermore club a surprising 52-46 defeat.

The Cowboys couldn't find the bucket in the first quarter, as they could only manage a meager four points while Dublin poured in 12.

Livermore outscored the Gaels 10-8 in the second period, but still trailed at the half, 20-14. The Cowboys warmed up late in the third quarter and, coming up from a 35-25 deficit, scored 10 points early in the final period to knot the score at 37-37 with 3:36 left on the clock. Patty Shirley canned 10 of her 17 points in the fourth quarter, while Peggy Baker followed with four and Lynnette White, three, but it wasn't enough as Dublin poured it on in the final minutes to clinch the victory.

Livermore's junior varsity took their tenth victory in as many outings as the first place Cowboys downed hustling Dublin, 33-25.

Cowboy guard Lee Hardiman canned 17 points, while teammate Kim Bohannon added seven. Lorie Kretchmar led the losers with five points.

Mary Jo Melko's 12 points led San Ramon over Foothill, 49-23. The Wolves' Lisa Stamp tossed in 10 markers, while teammate Nancy Kerlinger added seven. Carrie McNatt paced the losers with six.

A hot-handed Falcon junior varsity overpowered San Ramon, 25-16. Kelly Grogan and Kim Iverson pumped in six points each to lead the the Foothill club.

Tennis popularity high in valley

Since Jimmy Romeo and Chrissie Julliet shoved Burton and Taylor to the back page of the movie pulps, tennis has been booming.

Pro players make bundles, and so do equipment manufacturers and shrewd private club operators.

But the folks responsible for public court tennis are ambivalent about tennis' growth. Their aim is to bring the sport to the people. Their problem is that they've succeeded too well.

Suddenly everyone wants to play. But despite efforts to accomodate players with more courts, tennis suffers from over population.

Waiting lines are common on weekends. Heated words are occassionally exchanged. Public agencies have begun hiring monitors to keep the peace, and keep the games moving.

Huge private clubs have sprung up locally to help ease the burden of public court tennis. But people have been treated well by recreation agencies, and they're reluctant to abandon the schools and playgrounds.

If you want to play tennis on a city court, however, now is the best opportunity. Crowds are up from most winters because of the unusually mild weather. But there is little waiting, and none of the teeth mashing that accompanies a summer tennis weekend

Here's a rundown of what's available.

There are 10 public courts in Dublin, with eight at Dublin High School, and two at Kolb Park on Brighton Ave. The Brighton courts are generally busy, though Dublin has taken away some customers since resurfacing has been completed.

Livermore features eight courts at Granada High School, and four more at Livermore High, May Nissen Park contains four courts, and the Livermore Recreation Center has two.

In Pleasanton, Amador Valley High School has a nine court complex, Muirwood Park features four, and Pleasanton Elementary School has two. In addition, there are four indoor courts for public use at the Alameda County Fairgrounds.

Night tennis is available at Granada High free of charge. Pleasanton Elementary lights are blinked on for a 25 cent hourly charge.

The indoor courts on the fairgrounds are available at $4 per hour and a quarter. Reservations can be made at 846-3770.

Of the outdoor courts, Granada and Amador high schools will employ monitors during peak hours in the spring and summer Nominal fees will be charged, and court usage limited to an hour when players are waiting.

Most public courts have posted rules limiting play to an hour or two sets, whichever comes first, when there are players waiting.

Lessons are available through the Pleasanton and Livermore recreation departments, and through Valley Community Services District in Dublin. Lessons involve group instruction at minimal rates. Instruction is already underway in Pleasanton and Livermore, and begins March 8 in Dublin.

There are two major public court tennis clubs in the area, the biggest, Livermore Tennis Club. It has 526 registered members and the number is steadily growing.

"With so many lessons being given now there are a lot more people playing tennis," says Barbara Beane, publisher of the LTC newsletter. "And as they come up, they join LTC because it is cheaper than a private club. Then, even after they join private clubs, they stay with LTC It's very strong," Barbara says.

Memberships are $7.50 per family, $5 for singles and $1 for juniors.

PLayers are offered eight tournaments, a tennis ladder to compete on, and the opportunity to play team tennis against other blubs.

Membership is always open through chairman Sandy MacCracken.

Pleasanton Racquet Club carries 180 members with dues almost identical to LTC. It offers seven tournaments plus the other opportunities available through the Livermore counterpart.

The clubs are also tennis service organizations, having been instrumental in raising money and undertaking projects to erect lights, wind screens and benchs at public courts.

"A lot of people complain because we take up court space on weekends with tournaments," says Racquet Club president Andy Sargent. "But we just spent $535 dollars to put up wind screens at Amador, and we put in benchs at Muirwood Park We're not just takers."

Crowding problems on local courts are not critical Weekends are obviously busy, and so too are "after work" hours during spring and summer. Nights are busy at Granada High, but space is usually available.

"Tennis Faire" at the fairgrounds is usually crowded during stormy days.

Private tennis available in Livermore at Del Valle Tennis Club, a 14-court outdoor complex with swimming pool.

Tennis Town in Pleasanton features 21 indoor courts, plus racquetball courts to be installed soon.

Facilities are also available at Castlewood Country Club in Pleasanton. Private lessons are offered at all three outlets.

Bruins win

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Forwards Richard Washington and Marques Johnson combined for 45 points to lead the sixth-ranked UCLA Bruins to a 78-76 victory over the Washington Huskies in a crucial Pacific-8 basketball game Saturday.

The triumph keeps the Bruins atop the Pac-8 with an 8-1 mark, while Washington drops to 6-3 with the loss.

The Bruins got a scare when Husky guard Clarence Ramsey, who scored 19 points, stole the ball from Bruin guard Jim Spillane in the final seconds, but the clock ran out before he scored what appeared to be the game-tying layup.

The Bruins were held without a field goal for the last five minutes of the game, but managed to convert nine of 12 free throws down the stretch.

Johnson scored 21 points, 17 in the second half, after a cold-shooting first half that saw him make only two of nine field goal attempts. Washington scored 16 of his 24 points in the first half.

Husky forward Lars Hansen scored 22 points and played the last 10 minutes with four fouls. Washington center James Edwards scored 20 points, 15 of them in the first half, but fouled out with 6:24 remaining and Washington trailing 65-58.

gram. No one could locate Curt to find out, however. He was down selling coffee in the snack bar while the Matadors were on the field winning games.

The only touchdown of Dennis' career came in a junior varsity game a year ago when he ran in a fumble. Curt only saw it because the refreshment stand was behind the proper end zone.

Curt's involvement with community sports began more than a decade ago when he played and managed a fast - pitch softball team.

From there he moved over to the town's Babe Ruth program. Lehew never stopped at just managing ball clubs, though, he was always the money man as well.

"Every time you'd see him he'd be selling you some sort of raffle ticket to support softball or little league," Duke says. "He didn't get a lot of credit for what he did because he always stayed in the background. But he was always there running a booth or gathering building material for whatever you needed.

"He even let the little league store its refreshment trailer in his driveway one year."

Lehew was one of the dozen or so Livermore parents who launched a stadium drive at Granada.

Once it was built, he spotted for Duke, who announced Matador football. At least he did until the fear arose that Curt's game voice might shoot out over the public address system.

"He shocked a lot of ladies who used to sit next to him at games," Duke says.

"I consider him my best friend, but for 12 years he told me I was blind as an umpire. As coaches we used to go at each other all the time. We had a running battle going on the field."

During the last four years of illness Lehew never slowed down as a manager. In fact, his name is still on the roster of Babe Ruth coaches for this year.

Curt never missed a season in Livermore until now. He did what he could to insure that kids wouldn't have to miss the season either.

GGF switch a possibility

If the Golden Gate Fields 92-day horse racing meet is switched to Alameda County Fairgrounds in Pleasanton, it could have mixed results for the local track, according to Everett Nevin, the Fairground's Director of Racing.

Golden Gate's culinary workers have been on strike since Febuary 6. Richard Groulx, head of the Alameda County Labor Council, said he would ask Gov. Brown to "expedite approval of the Pleasanton race meeting because it appears the current Golden Gate Fields management is not interested in doing business this year."

Nevin said "the switch to Pleasanton could affect the Fairgrounds' regular two-week schedule starting in June.

"The Pleasanton Fairgrounds regular schedule only goes for 12 days because it is too expensive to run the track on Sundays," Nevin went on. "Golden Gate's meeting ends June 12, right before ours start."

"On the other hand," Nevin said, "the Fairgrounds would receive rent during the time the Golden Gate meeting is held there." (If indeed it is).

Nevin feels the biggest problem involving a possible switch of sites would be the time involved.

"It would take about a week to get things ready at Pleasanton," he admitted. "The stands would have to be cleaned and the track would have to be made ready." Another problem would be the seating conditions. "Our main stands only seat 600 people," Nevin said. "The Golden Gate Fields stands have a capacity of 12,000 or 13,000."

Of the 92 days on the Golden Gate Fields meeting about seven have been used up since the strike started. According to Nevin the strike is costing the state about $85,000 per day.

Groulx says a group represented by former Golden Gate Fields general manager Charles Coughlin "has asked for the racing dates and has the credentials to run a successful meeting.

The Fairgrounds track is able to handle $1 million a day in wagering, slightly less than Golden Gate Fields.

Alcosta booters beaten

Despite the superhuman efforts of goaltender Doug Spann, the Alcosta All-Stars were eliminated from California State Soccer Association play by a tough Central California squad, 3-1 Friday night at Dublin High School.

Alcosta, very emotional and aggressive, went right after the heavily favored invaders and managed to score the evening's first goal as Rich Timmons blasted in a 15-yarder.

However, Central California, the defending state champions, displayed their strength as they immediately knotted the score. Left wing Lupe Ruiz did the honors, booting home a 16-yarder past the sprawling Spann.

Suprisingly, the local All-Stars managed to play evenly with Central California throughout the entire first half and over 10 minutes of the second stanza.

However, Ruiz soon banged in his second goal of the night, a 15-yard bomb past Spann.

The Central California squad ended the scoring when Antaloe Helewsky netted a five - yarder to send his team on to Balboa Stadium in San Diego for the state championships.

SALES COMMISSIONS

WHY ONLY ½ OF THE PIE?

Listen to the NEW, Revolutionary Allied Brokers Story.

MYTH NO. 1 — Allied Brokers is only interested in Brokers.

FACT NO. 1 — Because of the coming Real Estate Licensing requirements, we encourage all Allied Brokers' agents to get their Brokers license as soon as possible. Primarily we are looking for agents that have the desire and ability to continually improve their licensing status so as to become a Broker. This means new or experienced agents with potential. If you have the potential, we will train you so you can reach the highest degree or professionalism & earning power.

MYTH NO. 2 — Monthly expenses per agent is equal to 3% of the average home sales price.

FACT NO. 2 — In Allied, if you are paying all of your monthly office expenses, and therefore receiving 100% of the commissions, and you generate one $40,000 sale per month will pay your office expenses and put $5,600 in your pocket, depending on how much advertising you do. After that one transaction, the rest goes directly, 100% to the agent.

MYTH NO. 3 — The only way you can work with Allied Brokers is to pay an equal share of monthly office bills.

FACT NO. 3. — Allied Brokers has basically three programs.

Program (A) — Allied brokers pays all your office expenses and agent can receive 90% of commissions generated in a given month over a certain minimum production. This is a monthly incentive program to allow agents to receive maximum income in exceptionally good month.

Program (B) — Agent pays a small flat monthly fee and Allied Brokers picks up the balance of agents monthly expenses. Agent starts at an 80% split and progresses up to 95% of the commissions generated upon producing one million dollars in sales volume.

Program (C) — Agent pays fixed share of monthly office expenses and receives 100% of commssions generated. Come in and let us suggest the commission schedule that fits your needs.

MYTH NO. 4 — Allied Brokers is made up of independent agents that only list and don't sell.

FACT NO. 4 — Based on production in 1975, Allied Brokers with 7 offices (and growing) and 57 agents listed approximately 1800 homes and sold approx. 2050 homes.

MYTH NO. 5 — Working at Allied Brokers, you don't receive any help in solving your everyday working problems.

FACT NO. 5 — Because of the average of 5 years experience per Allied Brokers agent, you have a greater wealth of expertise to draw on as an Allied associate than you could ever imagine. Every member of Allied goes out of his or her way to help each other. If you don't have the answer, just ask the agent next to you. They will know or tell you who does know.

MYTH NO. 6 — You have to sell over 1 million dollars per year to qualify for Allied Brokers. (Sure, the agents average over 1 million dollars in sales annually.

FACT NO. 6 — Allied Brokers DOES NOT have a minimum sales volume requirement, we don't have to. With the opportunities at Allied Brokers to financially improve yourself, with the generous commission schedules, the incentive is enough to allow you to reach a satisfactory sales volume that fits your needs.

We have all the marketing tools and help necessary for you to reach your maximum potential in real estate sales.

1. Equity advance and purchase guarantee program.
2. Direct mail and farm area program.
3. Unique approach to insure that YOU sell MORE of your own listings.
4. Group dental, medical and disability programs.
5. Allied Brokers London Bus (Moving billboards).
6. Personalized assistance by proven, experienced million dollar club office manager.
7. Special escrow procedure and sales training by experts.

Listen to these personal testimonies.

Pleasanton Brokers says, "I was nineteen years old when I got my Salesman's license and joined Allied Brokers. My manager spent countless hours with me, gave me leads and then helped me close the sale. When I was 21 I got my brokers license and now, starting my fourth year with Allied, I will have a sales volume of over 2 million dollars in 1975 to date. I really don't think I could have reached this level of sales anywhere else but Allied Brokers.

Hayward agent says, "I never realized I would get the assistance at Allied Brokers that I have received since I've been here. I had two years experience with another company before I came to Allied, and I've learned more about escrow procedures and sales techniques in the 6 months I've been here than in all the past two years put together. Plus, I'm making more money!"

Fremont agent says, "I was always afraid to make a move from my previous company, even though I have been in the real estate business for 3½ years and felt I had the sales ability to move on. I guess I felt that I had to pay the company 50% of my commissions generated because they ran the escrow, placed the loan, presented my contracts and did other "magical" things for me. as I look back, I know that my lack of experience in these areas kept me "locked in" to my old company. I just completed my first year with Allied Brokers, and in reviewing my production to date I find that, when I passed my previous years' sales volume, my net income, after office expenses (I'm paying my total bill and receiving 100% commission) was 36% greater than with my old company. And you know, those "magical" things they were doing for me were not so tough after all; and I'm finding that I get my escrows closed in a much shorter time also!"

With Allied Brokers' NEW COMMISSION programs and proven techniques, you owe it to yourself to sit down with us in a PERSONAL CONFIDENTIAL interview. If you are interested in improving your present position, or entering the real estate field, come join the pacesetter.
